

REV. JEN BROTHERS

Jen Brothers' day job is Leadership Ministry Specialist for the Presbytery of the Peaks. Through this role she helps churches navigate the waters of change, facilitating workshops and coaching pastors and session elders to narrow the gap from where they are to where they aspire to be. Jen is also a trained psycho-therapist and an ordained minister in the PCUSA. Jen is a founder of House of Bread, a Roanoke based non-profit providing job skills training and mentoring to formerly incarcerated women through baking and selling bread.

Jen holds a Master's of Divinity from Union Presbyterian Seminary, a Masters of Arts in Education from Virginia Tech, and undergraduate degrees in Communications and Spanish from James Madison University. Jen lives in Roanoke with her husband, Carter. Together they have raised three daughters, four dogs, and a cat.
